Thesis Title	Conversational Analysis if the Language of Legal Interrogation in English and Arabic
Year	٢٠٠٧
Abstract	The present study deals with conversation strategies adopted in the language of legal interrogation in English and Arabic data. They involve turn taking strategies, interruption, hesitation, speech fillers...etc.The research aims at exploring the general features of interrogation setting for the purpose of comparing them. Also, a special model adopted by Dillon tackling the speech in interrogation has been applied to the data in line with the interrogation speech acts model adopted by Stenstrom. The first chapter presents the application procedure. The second states features of the language of legal interrogation and documents. The third deals with the models adopted in this study and the fifth one presents a detailed analysis of the data chosen for the purpose of the study. The study is of importance to specialists in Forensics linguistics and discourse analysts of legal data. Besides, it can be of use to sociolinguists and critical analysts of discourse relating language with society.
