Abstract	Abstract of PhD thesis :- The study has focused on examination of remotely sensed images on marine environment. By using visual interpretation and digital analysis to classify and mapping morphosediments units, besides using lineaments abstracting from images satellite in tectonics analysis of study area. Finally the study compared between radiometer records of different sediments and hydrological features which obtained in the field with the reflectance values records of satellite data .this methods has provided the standard reflectance values for the selection features in the future studies.
