

Rita Brdar-Szabó
Eötvös Loránd University
Faculty of Humanities
School of Germanic Studies
Department of German Linguistics
Rákóczi út 5.
H-1088 Budapest
Hungary

Rita Brdar-Szabó is Associate Professor of German Linguistics in the School of Germanic Studies at Loránd Eötvös University (Budapest, Hungary). She was assistant at Kaposvár University (Hungary) between 1989 to 1992, when she moved to Loránd Eötvös University. From 2011 to 2017 she was also teaching in the postgraduate program in linguistics at the University of Osijek. She was guest lecturer at University of Bamberg, Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich, Partium Christian University of Oradea, University of Wrocław, University of Heidelberg, Complutense University of Madrid and University of La Rioja at Logroño. She is Head of the Doctoral Programme in Intercultural Linguistics at Loránd Eötvös University. Her main research interests include cognitive linguistics, morphology (in particular word formation), lexical semantics, and contrastive linguistics. She has published on the cognitive theory of metaphor and metonymy, grammaticalization, blending, prototype theory, and usage-based models.